

Poetry

Womb-wounded

Objects poke scratch hurt deep inside me.

Body quartered,
pain echoes in the third chamber of this house.

A band of aches remains.
Yet I hope, someday,

My silent bruised womb
will greet Desire with rushing warm sex.

by Dee Lister